Have you checked your vision lately?

Too often, small groups suffer from blurry vision - they have trouble defining their purpose. Or, the problem is double-vision - they simply have too many agendas.

However, when groups embrace a common goal and direction, their time together is not only purposeful, but fruitful and fulfilling.

Says Donahue, his goal is to help small group leaders, "get clarity about where they are going and the kind of community they want to become."

In this session of CCN's Groups That Grow series, Bill Donahue will help small group leaders understand the importance of Developing Group Vision.

You will learn how to:

- Develop a shared purpose and mission.
- Communicate this vision throughout the group.
- Stay on course.

Give your group an eye for the future!

Who Should Attend:

- Senior Pastors
- Small Group Pastors
- Discipleship Pastors
- Small Group Leaders

Bill Donahue is the executive director of Small Group Ministries for the Willow Creek Association and author of Leading Life-Changing Small Groups, and with Russ Robinson, the coauthor of The 7 Deadly Sins of Small Group Ministry and more.
